

Play on Rail – performative ride, a different view of the city through the eyes of a regional train passenger

The railway lines of Prague provide a true statement about the state of the city and the society itself. Journey along the inner side of a grown up organism, under the skin of polished streets and facades. Am I watching the house or is the house watching me? Will nature resist building development or will the new projects accept greenery as an integral part of the city? Who are the people living along the track and what is hidden in all the buildings along the way? Questions on a journey, during which the past disappears, memory is resuscitated and great leap forward is observed. But where do we go? An exciting ride with dozens of points of interest, which also includes a short visit to the Czech countryside. Come and create the story a other city with us.
